Jake's parents, his big brother and big sister are always doing important things.
His dad is good at building things.
His mother is good at singing.
His brother is good at basketball.
His sister is good at dancing.
What is Jake good at?

One day Jake learns about My WOW Factor.
He goes online to look at www.mywowfactorcharity.org.
It says that if he gives a little money every week,
he can help kids in other countries.
He could give part of his allowance each week.
It doesn't seem hard.
Is this something that Jake could be good at?

First, he gives money so kids in Ethiopia will have clean water to drink.

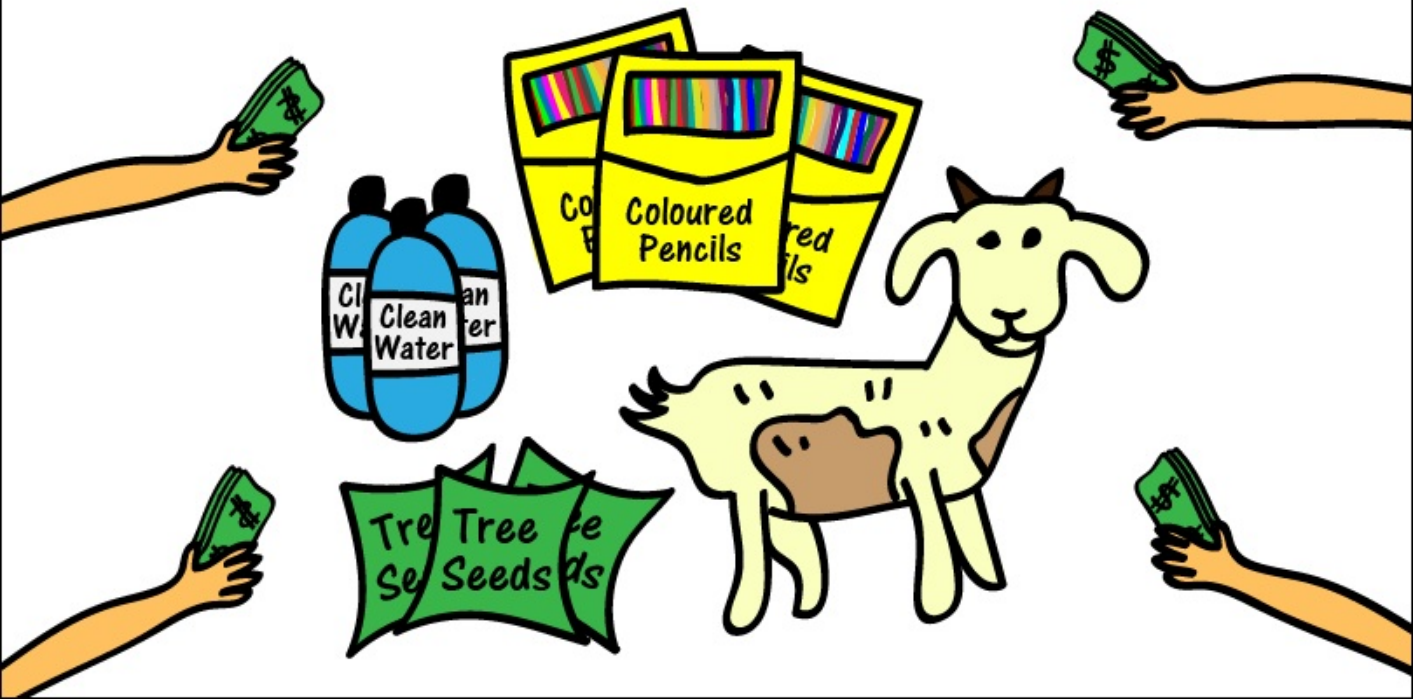

Then, he buys pencils for a school in India.

He's getting the hang of this. It seems like he's pretty good at it.

Next, he gives money to help buy trees in Tanzania.

After that, he helps a family in Uganda buy a goat.

Now they can make enough money for the kids to go to school.

Jake is really good at this. Using only what he has,
he's helping people around the world!

He gets an email from My Wow Factor Charity telling him about all the people he's helped.

The email says Jake is being a friend to them,
even though he's never met them.

Jake starts to think: what if he keeps giving every week for his whole life?

He'll help hundreds of people.

He'll have thousands of friends he's never met!

It will almost be like he's famous!

This is even better than building things,
or singing, or basketball, or dancing.

Through My WOW Factor, Jake has found that he's good at helping people.
Jake's father, mother, brother and sister are proud of him.

He shows them how to use My WOW Factor
and they all start giving together.

Helping others is the best thing Jake's ever done!
